

My Role Model

My name is Tristan Yanis and I am 11 years old. I am in year six at Lihir International School. To me, a role model is a person who people look up to and a person who cares and respects others, regardless of who they are. They can be famous people, but for me, I consider my parents as my role models.

One thing I admire about my parents, is their persistence and confidence in getting through life as working parents. I admire how they respect each other and their hard working attitude. Mom and Dad, care and respect others and even assist them financially if others need it. They encourage me everyday to be a good person and to work harder. They have gone through a lot of challenges during their life and a lot of sacrifices in order to provide a better life for themselves and our family. I owe everything to my parents. From the day they helped me scribble my first letter, to where I am today, it's their enduring patience and love.

The role model I want to be when I grow up, is someone that is thoughtful of others, a person who people can come to in seek of help or knowledge. A role model who works well with others openly, and turns their ideas and creativity into something that matters, so that everyone feels valued and unique.
